WHAT WE DO

At Batch Jewellery, we offer unique jewellery making workshops, teaching the ancient crafts of wax-carving & sand-casting to our community. Founded in 2021 by New Zealand born Amy Gopperth, an experienced jeweller, full-time mum & avid surfer, Batch is located in the beautiful Northern Beaches of Sydney. As a nature loving company & living on the beaches, we aim to make our workshops as sustainable as possible to maintain our environment, through the techniques & materials we use.

Perfect for groups, our workshops are a great activity for mindfulness & team building, offering quality time to sit together & bond. We offer two variations of Ring Making Workshops, depending on the specific requirements of your group. Additionally, in partnership with the Northern Beaches Council, we now provide a mobile service, bringing the workshop experience directly to your workplace, retreat or even home, for an unforgettable day of creativity!

We are passionate about bringing people together within the community & sharing our craft & we can't wait for you to join us at one of our workshops.
